"THE NEW EUROPE."

The above in cloth-bound case with pocket for Map, names (in English and Chinese with pronunciation) and location of principal Roads and Streets, Peak, City and Kowloon with Legalized Tariff for Chair and Ricksha-hire; Price $2.00. Map alone $1.00. To be had from China Mail, South China Morning Post, Krily & Walsh, Berwer & Co. and Thos. Cook & Sow. Under this heading Dr. Dillon contributes to the. Contemporary a characteristically clever analysis of the recent European crisis over the Balkan trouble. He

Baron Achrenthal's victory stands for two very memorable innovations. In the first place Europe, hitherto a sort of federal republic of nations, in "whose destinies every member had, at least a consultative voice, has now become monarchie; and, in the second, the begemony belongs to the militant Powers of the

MORALS NO CONSIDERATION. .. This drastic result he traces to "the dangerous illusion" with which the three Emente Powers set out, "that international relations, when vital interests are at stake, are shaped by ethical considerations." The crisis has thrown a light on German policy which easy-going Englishman had not seen before :-

Germany is a military and predatory State, whose policy is not hampered by any set of rules more ethical than that which obtain in the camp and on the battlefield. For the primary aim of her policy is to seize, whereas that of Great Britain is to keep.

THE FOLLY OF MENACE WITHOUT MIGHT. Dr Dillon is very severe on the three Entente Powers. They might have come to a harmonious understanding with Achrenthal, whose first intention was to obtain the consent of the Powers to the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina before incorporating them and to offer compensations. These Powers missed their chance and took up a line which led to their ignominious. discomfiture. Dr Dillon draws the moral:-

It is safe to lay down the maxim that when one Power or group of Powers is manifestly resolved to have its way at all costs, the diplomatic language of the opposing group should be carefully regulated by the strength of its land and sea forces, the amount of its gold reserve, the level of its financial credit, and its readiness to stake all these advantages in resisting the will of its adversary. And from this relation between military strength and diplomatic bearing the Entente Powers swerved continually. They preferred offensive accusations against Austria. They made demands which they could neither justify nor enforce. They spoke menacingly while abjuring the means of carrying out their threats. Great Britain, Dr Dillon admits, took up an impregnable position on the soundness of international obligations. Unfortunately, she later stepped down from this lofty pedestal and broke a lance for the hairbrained Serb.

FOOR. " WOOLLY SHEEP "! Germany's master-stroke, which detached Russia from the other Entente Powers and by threat of war secured the victory of Austria, produced a situation which Dr Dillon humorously describes as "three woolly sheep in a towering rage versus two able-bodied wolves "I The ill-advised initial action of the three Entents Powers, in Dr Dillon's summary account, put an end to Austro-British friendship, offered Germany an opportunity to draw closer than ever before the ties that linked her with the Hapsburg Monarchy, enabled the King of Hungary to obtain the funds which had been persistently denied him by sulky Parliament or given only in driblets. for the reorganisation of the army, annshilated Bussis's prestige in the Balkans, wrocked Bervis Buancially, humiliated the Powers of the Batente in their own estimation. lowered them in the eyes of Turkey and Bulgaria, and demonstrated to the militant States that their will may henceforth be made the law of Europe.

In Touch with the Empire

Bome one who had never been near the House of Lords informed me the other THE THE THE TOPE CHEN DET WAS THE COR duc grand guitaudxol forhunting peers out of touch with the problems of national life, and, therefore, not fitted to be one of the Houses of Parliament.

About fifty times one week in the House of Commons I have heard the superb voice of the Speaker saying ... The question is that this Home doth agree with the Lords in the said amendment. This referred to bunches and bunches detailed alterations (which the House of Lords has been making during the past few days in bills of the year sent up to them by the Commons, and for which in many cases their lordings have been waiting since last Spring. In almost every rase the Commons agreed with the Lorenteents, and the Government. afternoon or two ago so far forgot itself as to admit that the Lords have made improve-LOOKING ROUND.

about business, the country, the Empire, PANY, Des Voeux Road. or public affairs or the needs of the people. On a back bench over there on the left if the woolsack is a silver-haired, gentlelooking extremely kindly man. He gave the people St. Imbbeck's Day. He has spend tong life immersed in tenking and great problems of finance, and an acquaintance with natural history and the inner destroy of the life of the people. He is Lord Avebury. On the red bench in front of him is a tall, clean-shaven viscount. He has traveled the Far East, has studied many countries at close hand, has adorned the businesslike debates of the House of Commons, and has been Vicercy of India. Thisis Lord Curzon.

By his elbow is a spare lightly built man with the brow of a statesman and a polished deliberate style of speech rarely reaching to passion. He has been Vicercy of India and Governor-General of Canada, War Minister and Foreign Minister, and trehitect of the Angle-Japanese alliance, and knows the problems of the poor in our country parishes with a close insight and deep experience. He is about the twenty aixth successive peer of his line. The Marquis of Lansdowne is a very hereditary poer.

On his left you will see a broszy and businesslike earl. His hair is brushed back his face is ever alert, his voice is hearty who his style goes struggle to the point. He has been here of one of the largest enterprises in the world, and then First Lord of the Admiralty. Lord Cawdor was chilifitian of the Great Westorn Rail-

At the end of the front bench sits a big, powerful framed peer, with a binit, bustnesalike style of speech, no forensic orns-ments and a vast knowledge of public business. He has been on many Royal Commissions, and has dug desper into the technique of instional questions with their labyrinths of facts and figures than almost any man in the House of Commons. He has been Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, Chairman of the Commissions on Welsh Sunday Closing, Metropolitan Water Supply, Local Taxation, Food Supplies in lime of War and various others. He has been Lord Rector of Edinburgh University, and a leader in the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland. This enormous man with the business head is Lord Balfour of Burleigh. Next him you will see a short, squarebuilt man who at eighty odd is as alert of mind, as acute of speech, and as clever at following out lucidly a long involved chain of argument as many a man of fifty years younger. Besides having sat as Lord Charcollor of England for about eighteen years; Lord Halsbury has done much work as chairman of, the City and Guilds of London Institute. Warden of the Guild of Undergraduates of Birming ham University, president of the Royal Society of Literature, High Steward of Oxford University, Senior Grand Warden of English Freemasonry, and other high offices, and has tried to keep his muscles in tune with his remarkable brain by working in his workshop and using his turning lathe. As long ago as Disraeli's haloyon days he was Solicitor General.

Sitting close by him is a tall ovalished peer, his black hair parted in the middle. who sits watching the debate, checking the discussion of public matters with his mind. He has been Viceroy of Ireland, and owns great coal mines in the north of England. Much thinking and comparatively little speaking are among the characteristics of the Marquis of Londonderry.

On a back seat on the crowded Unionist benches sits an extremely quiet man with kindly eyes and a bushy black beard. He has the air of a man who is worth a good deal in himself and does not trouble overmuch about his clothes. His whole air is an air of modesty. When headdresses the House there is no dominant ring in his voice, but only a quiet, lucid stating of his views as a businesslike contribution to the debate. This is the Earl Marshal of England, premier Duke and Earl, Sir Henry Filtalan Howard, fifteenth Duke of Norfolk, Kingfit of the Garter, Lord-Lieutenant of Sussex, ex Mayor of Sheffield, London County Councilor and ex-Postmaster-General"

Across on the other aide, on the Lord Chancallor's right, is a peer of eighty one debates on that far-off Education BHL, which because the direct great, Education Act in 1870. He is a short, vigorous man, with a bushy grey beard and a very well (FFIDES in YORK BUILDING.

Every boy and every gal.

That's born into this world alive

Is either a little Liberal.
Or else a little Conservative. These are the non-party cross benches.

Here are such remote fox hunting knownethings as Lord Milner, who did work most people would deem sufficient for a lifetime at the Board of Iuland Revenue before he became the pivot of a terribly trying period in South Africa; Lord Roberts, of whom it seems almost satrilege to say anything in the way of description, but who made a great name at Kandahar while most of us were in our cradies is suother cross-bench peer; Lord Rosebery, ex-Prime Minister of England, who in his most meteorelike movements a ways lights the House with a great radiance is bluss by On these cross benches your will sometimes see a quiet; thoughtful man with large square speciacles and an a of pro-found revience. Indite open his mouth unwisely we might wake up in the morning and find several nations at war: This quiet peer knows more about foreign affairs from the British point of visw than any other man in the world. He was with the great Lord Salisbury through all his brilliant years at the Foreign Office, and indeed has spent a lifetime in all the vortices of European diplomacy. Lord Sanderson has the Foreign Office style of saying as little as possible. But he is none the less of value to the nation and the Empire for that: It would take long to tell of the doings and position of such obscure fexhunting know-nothing peers as Lord Monkswell, of the Loudon County Council : Lord Ash-bourne, the author of a notable system of Irish land purchases; Lord Rothschild, who is understood to know something about husiness; Lord Reay, chief of the Clan Mackay; sometime chairman of the London School Board; Lord Ampthill, who trained under Mr Chamberlain at the Colonial Office, smoked a large briar pipe, revised colonial tangles, and went out to govern India; Lord Cromer, who gripped the financial muddle of Egypt and set it right; Lord Strathcona, one of the world's business men. WHITE PATCH. Over in the corner to the right of the Woolsack is a patch of white. It is formed by the benches of those peers who are bishops. The Bishop of London is understood to have been in touch somewhat with the problems of the posple down in the East End; and "Canon Gore," the Bishop of Birmingham, and that medisevallooking figure standing tall and broad shouldered in his flowing white lawn. Dr Talbot. Bishop of Southwell, and the silver-voiced Dr. Boyd Carpentar, Bishop of Ripon, who worked as a zealous parson in Clapham, Holloway and Paddington, understood to be not entirely remote from national needs.

There are many more peers of this sort. Of course, you will say, there are others who have not distinguished themselves in public life or private work. Yes, but these do not come to Westminster. When you "mend" the House of Lords by cutting these out you will leave in just the men who do the work now .- Charles T. King in the Daily Express

THE STATE OF THE S SHARE REPORT.

Messrs Vernon and Smyth in the share report under date July 2nd state: The market has continued quiet im tone during the week and the small business that has been transacted has been limited a few stocks. Rates, however, have steadied a bit and several important advances have to be chronicled, the market plosing firm and with an incipient enquiry for most stocks. Exchange on London

Banks, -Hongkong and Shanghais after some small sales at $1000; and the demand meeting but with a very limited supply, were placed at 1005, 1010, and 1012; and at time of closing buyers at the higher rate rule the market. The London rate has advanced to £95, and the latest Shanghai advices give $1025 buyers at ex 73.

Morine Insurances .- Unionshave changed hands at 840 and 837 to closing quiet with sellers at the latter rate. North Chinas have advanced to 108 with buyers and no sales to report. We have nothing further to report under this heading. Fire Incurances - Chinas have improved to 111 with sales. Hongkong remain unchanged with buyers at 345.

Shipping. - Hongkong, Canton & Macaon have ruled rather quieter with sales and a few shares still offering at 33. China. & Manilas have declined to 10 without sales. Star Ferrys have been placed at 26 and 151 for old and new respectively. Indes have found local buyers at 66 and a few shares have changed hands at that.

Refineries. - China Sugars were placed in the early part of the week in several lots at 135, but later the market rallied and eturned to 140 with sales. At time of closing, however, shares are on offer at the latter rate. Luzons continue with sellers

Mining .- With the exception of Chinese Engineerings, which have fallen to 181, we have no changes to report, under this heading.

Docks, Wharper and Godowns .- Hongkong and Whampon Docks after sales the early part of the week at 64, suddenly came into demand, and in the absence of shares, the rate rapidly rose to 70 at which a few changed hands, with more shares on offer; however the rate failed to be maintained, and the market closes weaker with sellers at 68. Wharfs have ruled very quiet and without business, buyers at time of closing ruling the market at 57. Shanghai Docks have improved, in the North, to 82, and Hongkew Wharfs to 163...

Sir Henry Brackenbury's Views

We all know that "writing for the papers" is held to be a serious offence in officials, and that it is storply repressed by higher authority. Indeed, it is held that in some cases connection with the press some officials. As a matter of fact, however, notwithstanding the official ban against "writing for the papers," a large number of Government servants do that which they ought not to do : but - c course this is done "sub ross," says the Englishman. We, however, fail to see any objection to officials giving expression these which make us wonder whether there to their view upon current topics of the day, so long as they do not give away what are held to be State secrets. That a connection with the press does not always retard the advancement of officials, is testified by General Sir Henry Brackenbury, who will be remembered in India as Military Member of Council, 1891 to 1896 In his reminiscences in Buckgood's Mogozine, Sir Henry Brackenbury, who is now 72 years of age, ascribes his advancement in great measure to his connection with the press. He says: "To my employment of my spare time, which has been following story can apply to any of them. sketched in these papers, I attribute to a great extent whatever measure success I had in my profession. KAMBLING NOTES.

What's in a name? Or how do you pronounce it to The little incident at the Magistracy on Thursday reminds one of the strange transformations which have overtaken some surnamen in England. A readers of the Wesser novels will remember Mr Hardy's famous Tess Durbeyfield which had been evolved in the course of many generations from the aristocratio Anglo-Norman D'Urbeville ; then there is Mr Frank Bullen's new here who rejoices in the name of Demey, whereas his fore bears had proudly flaunted in their Viking days the expressive name of De Mare.

Then in regard to Christian names we have the case of the worthy couple who wished their son to be called "Yonus, after his grandfather." The officiating Parson kicked at, bustowing such a mis. placed heather patrynomics on a healthy British boy; whereupon the grandfather was sent for and on his appearance a church the old gaffer explained: "My feyther christened I Sylvanus Urban, but folk soon got to ca. I Venus and I didn't mind the short ning."

Names are sometimes changed, with malice aforethought, as the lawyers say: The worthy tradeeman who had made his pile under the name of Bugg, changed it by deed poll into Norfolk Howard-at least so the legend runs; while does not Zangwill tell in one of his inimitable Yiddish stories of old man Lazarus inviting his numerous progeny to dinner one feast day and going about in fear and trembling lest he should call them by their wrong names, for they had sloughed off the old label when entering the world of fashion and changed into Lascelles, Montagus, Burleighs and Leightons.

Now I know where to go to if I want to consort with a community of people who live the blameless life. It is to the village of Stanley, which lies on the hither side of "the beautiful, islands of Hongkong. It is no idle reputation which Stanley has won; the Police in charge are the mon who sing its praises, and as we know the Police force of Hongkong is not given to bestowing praise indis ill-deserved. Auburn, sweet village of the plain though it had a post to sing its praises. cannot hold a candle to Stanley, in the opinion of the Horgkong police. Long may it continue to wear the white flower of a blameless life, for the rest of the Colony is steeped to the lips in iniquity if all the tales told in the Charge Room at the Magistracy are true.

Mr Editor, didn't you feel a glow satisfaction in reading that the new Peak Tramway Bill is dead—dead as a door nail. You ought to, for you undoubtedly voiced the opinion of the majority of the general public when you supported Mr Dunn in his protest against the desecration of the North to 133. Internationals have receded Public Gardens. But there, I don't sup-I am given to understand that Editors are made of such sublime material that they can survey mankind from afar and remain undisturbed no matter what happens in the little world of men.

> 1868-1909! Fawmen! I should say, can claim a longer period of service in one Colony than Mr Seth, who left us on Wednesday for a well-carned trip to England... He deserved all the nice things that the barristers and solicitors said about him at their farewell meetings, for no one ever put himself to more trouble to serve his fellow men than he did. May he have the pleasantest of times in the old country and a happy roturn to the place where he has won such an envisble record.

Reporters often most with strange experiences in following their calling. Probably, however, the most awayed situations in which they find themselves are those which are occasioned by fervent missioners who fail to realise that the attendance of a matter of choice with him, but that even there he is on the hunt for "copy." Once again I road of an attempt to save a reporter's soul, this time in Australia, by a member of the Chapman-Alexander Mission, which is to visit Hongkong in the near future. It happened at an evening meeting at Collingwood. The missioner approached with the query, "Are you saved 20 The newspaper man answered, a little more testily than he should have answered, "I am a reporter." The worker was not discouraged, Al the better," he murmured earnestly "think what a blow it will be to the

on the matter of drinks." We hear so much of what is, and what is not the best beverage that one is apt to become bewildered in the endeavour to follow out the advice of all one's friends. But I am not going to enlist in the army of advisers: I've simply got a word or two to say to the testotalers this time. It is that they should beware of the hidden dangers lurking in "pop." I want to warn them to profit by the experience of a man who was charged at Lambeth recently with in Hongkong, but I hardly imagine that the | being incapably drunk, and pleaded that he had only consumed elderberry wine. Mr Mackensie Ring yM. P. Canada a re presentative at the Oplum, Trade, Con. ference recently held at Shanghai, has just re burned, to Ottowa. During his absence his took occasion to investigate once more the question of Oriental immigration, and reports that the arrangements effected by Canada with the Indian authorities a year ago are working to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. As regards Japan the authorities there are living up to the agreement effected by the Hon. Mr Lemisux, while so regards China the existing legislation, which imposes a $500 (£100) the little was the partie was the printer China is not becoming but is a great empire; the dawn of China's awakening is not in the future, it is already present. In nothing was I more surprised than in the industrial development which has taken place in so many parts." Mr King believes that Canada has nothing to fear as far as immigration from the Orient is concerned so long as the wiser councils of conciliation and moderation are, made to prevail. The real peril lies, "not in the possible move ment of labour from Asia that matter can be regulated as described—but in the almost certain movement of capital, only from America, but from Europe also,

Application for Return of Lady's Jewellery.

Soon after Mr Nunn took his seat this, morning, says the Straits Echo, of June 22. Mr Samuel, of the firm of Mesers Prescrave and Matthews, mentioned the case of Lim accommodation with Electric Light throughout and Electric Ferministis Claterpoon and Chee Saing who is charged with embezzlement of large sums of money belonging to the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation.

At this stage, Mr Wreford made an application on behalf of Miss Boyle. He said that his client had accompanied Lim Chee Saing to Hongkong; that when the latter was arrested in that place, the local police took charge of her jewellery, which they handed over to the Pensig police; he applied to them for the return of the same! but was told to get an order from a magistrate; that his client had been "brought." down with Lam Chee Saing. [There was some argument between opposing counsel in regard to the terms a came and brought" with reference to Miss Boylo's transport from Hongkong to Perang. Counsel, therefore, asked the court to pass orders for the return of the jewellery to Miss Boyle, contanding that the police had no claim to the same. The magistrate asked Mr Samuel if he had any objection to the application of Counsel, and after a few minutes, consultation with Chief Detective Insp. Kirke, he opposed the application. He stated that a portion of the property in question might belong to Miss Boyle; he was positive that the other portion belonged to Lim Chee Saing-at any rate. he had reason to believe the latter ordered the things, but had not paid for them. Counsel further maintained that the property was in "cafe keeping." Some argument ensued and eventually Mr Samuel asked that the application might be held over till the next hearing, by which time he hoped to be in a position to acquaint himself well with the facts. The court concurred, and the application was postporied.
